The First Ward Relief Society enjoyed a full day of activity when they combined their work and business day and their opening social on Thursday, October 6th. Elaine Meeks arranged the decorated tables and Agnes Neilson was mistress of ceremonies.

When the Ladies of Raymond 2nd Ward met for their opening social on Thursday October 6th, they were pleasantly surprised to find their room beautifully decorated with Harvest fruits, vegetables, and gaily colored fall leaves for which Mrs. Etta Brandley was responsible. All enjoyed the program which included a violin solo by Virginia Wilde, a skit under the direction of Eudene Duncombe and Hope Jensen, assisted by Dorothy Bowden, Melba Woolley and Virginia Wilde. ## Has New Escort on Birthday

Princess Margaret celebrated her 25th and probably the most important birthday of her life with the Royal family at Balmoral Castle, Scotland. The pretty princess, who now is free to marry whoever she wishes, apparently received no present from Peter Townsend, the handsome divorcee with whom her name has repeatedly been linked. Royal sources conclude, therefore, that Margaret is no longer interested in the RAF officer. The Princess invited Dominic Elliot, a Scot, to her birthday barbecue.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Allred and Mrs. Reid Litchfield enjoyed a pleasant trip to Creston B. C. Traveling through the mountains they were impressed by the beautiful autumn colors. Reaching Creston, they found the trees laden with the delicious fruits untouched yet by frost. They returned home with a great variety which is now keeping them busily engaged in home canning.

Jim Heninger was honored at his home on the occasion of his birthday by Mona, Honnie and his 4 sisters: Jean, Jan, Mirra and Marva. The afternoon was spent in chatting and enjoying the delicious lunch. Voices were raised in singing Happy Birthday while Jim found breath enough to blow out all those candles.

Airmen Pilot Orphans as Skilfully as Jets

Canadian airmen of No. 2 Fighter Wing stationed at Grosvenor, France, and their wives have taken an entire orphanage under their "wing," treating them and looking after their interests. Until the fliers pitched in to help, the orphanage was suffering financial troubles and lack of recreation facilities. Visiting Canadian airmen and women are always sure to bring along comic books and ice cream when visiting the children. Especially popular with the youngsters, who eagerly await each visit, is F-S Douglas Ducharme, who is seen taking Bernard and Danielle for a walk.

Their 2½ year old son Ryan is learning the language quickly while his baby brother is just concerned in learning to walk - as yet.

A major study of the resources, economy and industry of the Province of Alberta, with the aim of predicting the directions and rapidity of the province's economic development, has now been underway for four months. It was jointly announced today by Calgary Power Ltd., Calgary, and the J. T. Donald Co., Limited, Montreal firm of chemical and economic consultants. The study, sponsored by Calgary Power Ltd. will be carried out by a team of scientists, economists and market experts who make up the Economic and Market Research Department of the J. T. Donald firm. Scheduled for completion in a year to eighteen months, the investigation will probe every aspect of Alberta's economic life. Probably never before in Canada's history has such a far-reaching study of a Canadian province been commissioned by a private company.

Informed in Edmonton of the proposed work, Alberta Provincial Government officials expressed special approval of the fact that the Donald report on Alberta's economy would be published and made available to all interested persons on its completion. "This study," said J. E. Oberholzer, Deputy Minister of Industries and Labour, "will provide an informed opinion on Alberta's optimum directions for further growth and industrial development. This cannot but be helpful both to the province as a whole, and to those interested in participating in its great future."

Calgary Power Ltd., sponsors of the report, are major suppliers of electric power to consumers in the province of Alberta and one of the important privately-owned utility companies in Canada. Their major power project has been the extensive development of power sites in Alberta's Bow River Valley, where with due regard for flood control and water conservation modern engineering methods have extracted the maximum power potential from the river system at reasonable cost. The Company now supplies almost two-thirds of the electricity used in the Province. In announcing the J.T. Donald study, Calgary Power emphasized that the project was being sponsored in the public service, for the information of its customers, to assist in the industrial progress of the Province and to provide a useful guide in the planning of the Company's electric system. To be conducted along completely objective lines the report will present the best available opinion on Alberta's future.

J. T. Donald & Co. Limited, Canada's oldest firm of chemical consultants, this year are celebrating their diamond anniversary. Seventy-five years ago, Dr. J.T. Donald opened his industrial laboratory in Montreal to analyse samples of gold and silver ore sent by prospectors and miners. Known as chemicals analysts and assayers since that day, the firm has also specialized for many years in industrial chemical research, and more recently has added chemical engineering and economic research departments. With this group of services, the J. T. Donald Company has built and brought into operation chemical plants including that of the Canadian Salt Company in Lindbergh and that of Western Chemicals Ltd. at Two Hills, Alberta. The Alberta economic study is not the first major area survey for the firm, which has in recent years performed similar area survey for the firm, which has in recent years performed similar studies in the Provinces of Manitoba and Newfoundland.

President of J. T. Donald & Co. Limited, and the son of the founder, J. R. Donald is one of the best known men in the Canadian chemical industry. He is a firm believer in the industrial possibilities of Alberta. The Calgary Ammonia Plant, now operated by Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company which was the first petrochemical plant in Alberta, was built under his direction in 1940 when he was acting as Director General of Chemicals and Explosives Production for the Department of Munitions and Supply. He is also President of Western Chemicals Ltd., the first producer of chlorine, caustic soda and muriatic acid in Western Canada.

Several delegates attending the recent CWNA convention in Vancouver expressed surprise when they learned that the television network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation had refused advertising submitted by a sister media, radio station CKNW of New Westminster. They pointed out that this was hardly consistent in view of the network accepting paid advertising to publicize the advantages of using the Yellow Pages of the telephone directory.

William Rea, director-owner of radio station CKNW offered a contract to CBC under which Mr. Rea would purchase television time to bring his story of radio in general and CKNW, in particular, to the attention of TV viewers.

He was refused time. He was told that his service was not the type acceptable to CBC. In other words, he was not merchandising a product such as soap, coffee or automobiles.

Mr. Rea, under the impression that this would apply to all television outlets, took his problem to the United States. After an interview with King TV and Komo TV in Seattle, Mr. Rea was assured that his contract would be acceptable to them.

As a Canadian, Mr. Rea would prefer to spend his money in Canada, assisting what he understands is a Canadian institution. But, he points out, it is apparent that 'CBC is getting sufficient funds from the taxpayers and does not need the advertising revenue which I am willing to provide.' He claims that this type of action is not healthy for the economy. It smacks too much 'a bureaucracy and should not be permitted.'

'I hope,' he said, 'to arouse the Canadian public to a recognition of the dictatorial methods employed by CBC and perhaps some changes may be made which will enable advertisers in similar situations as mine to obtain time over CBC television network.'

Three cars loaded with members of a Sunday night Study Group travelled to Barnwell after church to the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bishop where they enjoyed the lesson 'Records Yet to be Revealed' from the book - 'The Way to Perfection' which was presented by the host, after which lunch was served.

Don't gamble that your home is fire-proof! How about those oily rags in the kitchen closet? Or those old clothes and papers and other trash in the attic? Or that pesky oil stove that didn't work right all last winter? One tiny, stray spark and you're out of luck - and a home. Here's some Fire Prevention Week advice - Don't give fire a place to start!

Are you a careful smoker? or a non-smoker? If the answer is 'yes', you are not one of the persons responsible for Alberta's most frequent cause of fire. Last year 807 fires causing $1,080,843 property loss was the result of smoker's carelessness.

This is fire prevention week and winter's just around the corner. This is the best time, says your Fire Department, to check if your stove and heating equipment are ready for winter operation. Examine your chimneys and flue pipes, too. Make necessary repairs right away. Don't give fire a place to start!

Out of 2,574 fires reported in Alberta last year 1/2 of them occurred in homes. Think carefully now how to avoid fire loss in your home. Careless smoking is your greatest enemy. Guard against overheated or defective heating and electrical appliances and never use gasoline in or around the home.

Prevention Week - October 9 - 15

Be Careful - The House You Save May Be Your Own

Alberta's Fire Commissioner, A. E. Bridges, has announced that this province will observe Fire Prevention Week, in conjunction with the remainder of Canada and the United States, during the week of October 9 - 15. Special effort will be made during the week to acquaint home owners with fire safety.

Statistics from fire loss reports have shown that last year, two thirds of all fires occurred in the home. As part of a program to curb this devastating loss, fire chiefs throughout the province will arrange as many interviews as possible with home owners to discuss fire safety items.

One of the prime targets of Fire Prevention Week will be the cigarette smoker. It has been shown that smoker's carelessness heads the list of causes, both number and amount of destruction.

The Fire Commissioner's report shows that although there is marked increase in the amount of property loss last year, there has been a decrease in the number of lives lost due to fires. One encouraging statistic shows that the doubling of fire inspections in the past four years has resulted in a reduction of 20 per cent less fires for protected dwellings. However buildings that have not been inspected have shown a 16 per cent increase in fire loss.

Approved electrical appliances and an approved and inspected wiring system are the best safeguards against electrical fires. Always consult a qualified and licensed electrician for electrical installations. Last year 154 electrical fires caused 1/2 a million dollars of property loss.

The Special Interest Class of the 3rd Ward M. I. A. have chosen as their course of study for this winter, the Book of Mormon which will be presented by Joe McLean. All are welcome to attend this class.

How To Save Your Family From Fire
Get everyone out of the house the minute you discover a fire.

Don't fling doors open if you think there's a fire - feel them first and if they're hot, get out another way or block the doors with furniture or dampened mattresses to keep out the smoke and gases.

If you have to pass through smoke or heat, crouch down and hold a wet handkerchief over your mouth and nose.

Avoid panic, keep cool, don't jump from upper storey windows except as a last resort. Wait for the firemen - a closed door will hold back the fire.

Don't go back into a burning building for any reason other than to save life - and remember that smoke and fire gases can be deadly.

Unless it's a small fire and you're certain you can control it with the right extinguisher, don't waste your time or your life by trying to fight a fire - get away from it and call the fire department at once - they know how to fight it.

Plan with your family what to do in case of a fire - plan to use an alternate escape route away from the fire.

If you are burned or exposed to fire and smoke, get medical treatment at once.

Fire losses in Alberta last year totalled $7,657,085 or a per capita loss of $7.37. The loss is shown in a report issued by the Fire Commissioner's Office which also states that 35 persons died in fires which could have been prevented. The Fire Commissioner, Austin Bridges draws attention to the toll from 2 thousand 574 fires of last year.

When was the last time an electrician checked the wiring and the circuits in your home and garage? Here is some Fire Prevention Week advice from your Fire Department: Call an electrician today and have him check your home for any electrical fire hazards. Don't give fire a place to start.

Are you a tough guy when it comes to fire? This is Fire Prevention Week and a good time to figure on how not to give fire a break in your home. Check with your Fire Department on those fire hazards every good home should be without.

Don't over-estimate your own fire fighting ability, warns Fire Chief Bill Hague. There's no sorrier sight than the person who thought he could handle a small closet fire - and then had to watch helplessly as the house and all his possessions were destroyed by the flames.

This is one time when doing-it-yourself can be very expensive. The cost could very well be your own life, it too often is, says Chief Hague.

Don't be embarrassed to call for an investigation by the fire department at once if you smell smoke or even suspect a fire, the Chief urged.

'You'll only be calling on us to do the job we're trained and ready for,' he adds, 'and we'll appreciate your alertness. If we actually find a fire, you certainly won't regret it either.'

There is special cause for fire prevention in our schools. Improved building construction giving fire less opportunity to start and guarding against rapid spread is a valuable safe guard over the lives of school children. Careful housekeeping and janitor service is a must. Regular monthly fire drill practises are required by law. 15 school fires last year caused nearly $100,000 fire loss. This fire prevention week, let us guarantee fire safe school buildings and dormitories by calling for a school inspection by the Fire Chief.

Industry's most dangerous job is deep coal mining.

A former resident of Raymond Mr. Lloyd MacPhee 'Mac' to all his friends was in a car accident recently in the city of Vancouver (where he now resides.) His car was totally demolished but fortunately Mac escaped with a few bruises and scratches, he spent one night in the hospital and is now doing fine. His daughter Lillian flew to Vancouver to visit with him. She is a nurse in the Indian Hospital in Cardston.

Call The Fire Department
Don't hesitate to call for an investigation by the fire department at once if you smell or even suspect a fire.

In a fire minutes saved means lives saved.

Many times fires gain headway because each person assumes someone else has called the fire department.

Find out today the quickest way to bring the fire department to your home by night or by day.

In the city go to the nearest fire alarm box, phone fire department, call number and be able to accurately describe the location of the fire.

In town or village telephone fire number or call operator or pull fire switch at the fire hall.

In the country get help from neighbours and the closet fire department and prepare a water supply.

Careless and negligent smoking habits, misuse and careless handling of inflammable liquids, neglect of heating equipment are hazards which can be avoided. The Fire Prevention Week slogan is 'Don't give fire a place to start.'

Stop wherever you are! And think! What would you do if you discovered a fire this very instant? Whatever your answer, chances are you'd flunk if it were a real fire just because you never thought about it before. Remember this Fire Prevention Week advice: The best time to fight a fire is before it ever starts. Don't you give fire a place to start in your home!

The average monthly bill for electricity for home use varies from $3.92 in Ottawa to $20.97 in The Pas, Man.

This is Fire Prevention Week. And your Fire Department reminds you that fire is something that you should be thinking about every day - not just once a year. Fires don't have to happen. And they won't if you don't give fire a place to start.

KEEP THE MONEY IN RAYMOND

An old-timer is one who remembers when he could buy a pound of steak for a dime, but forgets he had to work for an hour to earn the dime.

It is estimated that in 1955 governments in Canada will spend $6,695 billions, half a billion dollars more than their estimated revenues.

Now that summer is past, we are back to household chores again. Here's a note on keeping fingernails from picking up dirt while you're doing heavy duty work on the floors, for instance — I dig my nails into a bar of soap and when the work is done, I find that my nails need only the lightest scrubbing. Try it!

And speaking of cleaning, Bill salvaged a discarded fruit basket, painted it a gay yellow and I use it for holding all my waxes, polishing rags and so on. It's already saved me a number of trips up and down stairs for forgotten items.

Still housecleaning! After washing a couple of throw rugs I found that the fringes dried ragged and unruly. A neighbor suggested setting them straight and rubbing lightly with a damp bar of soap. It helped to give them extra stiffness and body.

My discarded nylons now go to Bill. When some of his paint turned lumpy he stirred it thoroughly and strained it through a stocking. And when sanding wood surfaces, he slips an old nylon stocking over his hand, uses it as a 'detector' of rough spots when sanding the surface.

Here's a safety slogan — "Be Bright Not Bruised". We've hung a flashlight on a hook just inside the back door and no-one goes out at night without taking a light with him. It's also a help to urge children — and husbands not to leave toys in the yard where, at night, they become dangerous obstacles.

For a six-year old's birthday party last week I cut a pound cake into squares, iced them and topped them with each guest's initial. The youngsters were really delighted!

Incidentally, our six-year old was very proud of her new dress pumps. But because children can't help running through the house, her Dad lightly sandpapered the soles to prevent her new shoes leading to a new bruise!

Tricks for Treats

A rainy day treat for both mother and children is hot chocolate topped with a marshmallow rolled in cinnamon.

A quick dessert, fit for company — banana halves dipped in condensed milk and rolled in shredded coconut... bake in 350° oven for ten minutes. (Did you know bananas were practically unknown in North America until they were featured in 1876 at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition, wrapped in silver paper and selling for ten cents each?)

Bill says: A batchelor is a rolling stone that gathers no boss.

Distinguished new body styles featuring the long, low, slim, lean silhouette with distinctive changes in both grille and interior trim, are presented by the 1956 Monarch, Canada's own distinctive car.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Campbell were very happy to receive a visit from their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Pachal and two tiny daughters, Deborah and Cynthia, last Sunday. The Pachals now reside in Calgary where Amy Campbell visited them recently. She also visited with Joanne Salmon, who is attending Normal there this year.

Comfort, ease of driving and safety have been combined in a new idea car construction called safety-planned design and offered for the first time in the 1956 Monarch, Canada's own distinctive car.

Built in eight models in three series the Richelieu, Lucerne and Custom — the new Monarch cars will be seen by the Canadian public on October 5.

The 1956 Monarch has been newly styled, both inside and out, from the graceful grille to the massive rear lights and rear-deck ornamentation. Smart, matching vinyls, nylons and cloth materials in contemporary designs are used on door panels, quarter panels and seats.

The striking new instrument panel blends with all the other fine interior appointments and is designed for the utmost safety and convenience, with all gauges grouped just below the driver's normal line of vision and all controls within easy reach.

The long, low, slim, lean silhouette of the new Monarch is emphasized in the Richelieu series by a new four-door sport sedan with 'hardtop' flair and a coupe. A trim, racy convertible expresses Monarch's new design for 1956.

The Lucerne series, which has all of Monarch's advanced features presents a new four-door sport sedan, a coupe and a four-door sedan.

Safety-planned design is a result of years of research with safety experts. Highlight of this new concept of car construction is the impact-absorbing steering wheel, which has a deeply recessed hub — actually six inches below the outer rim of the steering wheel. The wheel rim is specially designed to absorb impact; the spokes are made to bend without breaking and the driver is protected from contact with the hub.

New safety-hold door locks, standard equipment on all Monarchs, have a new steel plate covering the rotor which prevents doors from springing open under moderate impact.

Optional safety features offered this year for the first time are safety belts which hold driver and passengers securely in their seats and a padded instrument panel cover, which not only provides greater protection from head injury in case of accident, but also gives an appearance of added luxury to the instrument panel.

Monarch has designed its power plants and its transmissions to complement each other. Three high compression, overhead valve, deep-black V-8 engines are offered. Displacement has been increased to 312 cubic inches, with a larger cylinder bore and a longer piston stroke. Increased displacement, higher compression ratios, new combustion chamber design and new, larger four-barrel carburetor make the Monarch engines outstanding in performance and dependability.

A new 12-volt system provides extra electrical power required for the higher compression engines.

Monarch's automatic transmission has been refined to keep pace with the performance of the new deep-black V-8 engine. Improved transmission gives another and swifter acceleration.

Dual exhausts, which improve performance and economy and cut down power-loss, are standard equipment on all Richelieu and Lucerne models and are optional at extra cost on Custom models.

Monarch's proven steadiness and road-holding abilities its handling and riding ease are attributed to a simplified ball-joint front suspension. Double-acting shock absorbers along with long-leaf variable-rate rear springs give extra riding comfort and cushion both road shock and sideways.

A full line of power accessories is offered as optional equipment to provide luxurious driving ease, including power and steering, power brakes, four-way power seat and power window lifts. Power lubrication (Multi-Lube) is also optional on all 1956 Monarchs. By touching a button on the instrument panel all front suspension and steering points are lubricated, automatically.

Addressing more than 200 Chrysler of Canada fieldmen at their annual convention here, R.T. Brown, Advertising Manager of the corporation described newspapers as 'the cornerstone of our whole campaign.'

In outlining the company's advertising plans for 1956, Mr. Brown announced that Chrysler of Canada will expand its advertising coverage during the coming year, providing increased assistance to its dealers' merchandising efforts.

"The bulk of the increase will go to local newspapers," he said, "for it is at the local level primarily that we must meet the buying public."

During 1955, he added, the corporation's outlay for newspaper advertising was the greatest in its history. Tremendously increased sales of Chrysler-built automobile throughout the year reflected the value of the program and warranted next year's substantial increase.

News From Your District Home Economist

Elizabeth M. Bartman,
Lethbridge

Autumn has brought us crisp cold nights and the end of our gardens for another season. This reminded me to write you on a couple of subjects.

Did you ever estimate the cost of your garden tools and supplies? If you have, you will probably realize that even with a small garden your investment is considerable. So it will pay to save tools from winter rusting and corrosion by putting them away clean and dry, and also to save all leftover garden chemicals by keeping them covered, dry and not cold enough to freeze.

For convenience, high shelves or ceiling racks in dry garages or basements may be a good place to park tools and supplies for the winter. There they will be dry and out of the reach of children and pets.

All tools should be thoroughly clean and dry before putting away. Sprayers need special attention because liquid sprays left against metal parts may so clog and corrode the utensil that it will be ruined by spring and need replacing. To clean sprayers, first empty any leftover spray, then take the sprayer apart and rinse several times thoroughly with hot water, let dry, put together loosely and store in a dry place. If you use weed killers, have on sprayer for this purpose and label it accordingly. This will avoid such a disastrous mix-up as combining a weed killer with an insecticide or fungicide. Dusters should be emptied too, and blown out before storing away.

All leftover garden chemicals, insecticides, fungicides, weed killers or fertilizers, should be kept dry in covered containers.

Such garden items as stakes, poles and cords - too often left outdoors to rot over the winter should be cleaned and put away in a dry place.

Finally, it pays to make a list of tools and supplies as you store them away. This list will tell what you need to order next spring and what you have on hand.

My second subject is 'warm up before running them'. Everybody knows that a cold motor starts hard. But not everybody knows that this slow, laborious start is hard on the motor. Household equipment specialists say that in cold winter weather it pays to save strain on motors by having them at room temperature - or at least warm enough so the oil and grease isn't stiff - before starting them. If the washing machine, for example, is kept on the back porch or other unheated place, bring it indoors to warm up a few hours before running it. Likewise take the chill off any other motor-driven equipment large or small before using it. This applies to the sewing machine or vacuum cleaner kept in a cold place, or to the grinder out in an unheated garage. Even a home freezer or refrigerator should be located where the temperature does not go below 40 degrees F, unless it is specially equipped to operate at low temperatures.

In today's mechanized home the investment in motor-driven equipment is large enough so that housewives generally should understand how to care for motors to make them last and save repair bills.
